For kids in hospital

Chase

Chase was excited to hear that he was going to be a big brother, but only four days later, his family were given the devastating news that Chase had leukaemia.

At just four years of age, Chase was like any other energetic little boy – taking part in his first tennis tournament and competing in his school’s cross-country.

After doctors discovered a lump on Chase’s neck, life became a blur of hospital visits and chemotherapy treatment as Chase began his ultimate fight for survival.
